Yeti, Yeti, Yeti— The Backyardigans

Stomp, stomp, stomp.

I'm the Yeti!

And I'm stomp-stomp-stomping forth...on a long cold hike to my favorite place: in my igloo in the frozen north!

I'm gonna stomp up there with my messy hair, kinda dirty and a little bit sweaty!

Stomp, stomp, stomp, get ready! Stomp, stomp, stomp! I'm the Yeti! Stomp! Stomp!

Stomp!

I'm stompin' that Yeti stomp! Stomp!

Stomp! Stomp!

I'm stompin' that Yeti stomp!

Has anyone actually seen a yeti... yeti? There are some who say these folks are unsteady

Though the truth is a strain
Open minds must remain
So no matter how outrageous, for anything I'm ready

The Yeti by Colin Mitchell Williams

I saw something outside my cave
And there the footprints leading away
Across the white waste lands of snow
They look kinda big
For it to be me walking in my dreams
And why would I be out anyway
It's so very cold

Was that the wind I heard moan
Sounded eerie
Kinda creepy
Maybe I am not alone !

Crunching, crunching soft and quiet
I can hear something stealthy
It's coming close
Sniffing and snorting
Maybe it found my smell in the snow

Then it said "Hello I am a Yeti"
Yeti...? I think my father told me about Yeti
Strange creatures and oh so solitary
It said quite softly and kinda sweetly
"May I come in if I can?
It's kinda cold out there in the snow all alone"
